2D ANIMATOR - Toon Boom Harmony

Freaky! Productions – Hollywood. F/T Contract $200/day - Full-time, Contract MUST Live in the Los Angeles area. Hollywood would be even better. I literally work 7 days a week. My work is my life and my lover. So, someone who is only interested in a 9 to 5 gig and gets weekends off, isn't going to fit with me. I need to be able to reach you any time. That is the same courtesy I am making available to you, as well. I am looking for a Toon Boom Harmony wizard, proficient in building 2.5D characters and objects and animating them. Someone who has their own set up and works from home - not someone who has a full time job and does animation on the side... been there, tried that, it doesn't work out. You DO NOT have to have major studio experience - in fact, I'd prefer it if you didn't. You just need to be really good at what you do. My second choice would be someone who walked away from the Hollywood system to do their own thing. Someone motivated by cutting a new path, not in maintaining the old one. We will be working on commercial animation projects, trailers, pitches and other side projects. And, if things work out, you will eventually lead a team. NOTE: I've been thru a number of animators and there's one thing I've learned... anyone can learn the programs and push the buttons. What makes a good animator is what else they bring to the table. Namely; reliability, personality, honesty, integrity and business acumen. You must have the ability to wear many hats and move easily between the various stages and necessities of creating content. Basically, I'm looking for a no-nonsense artist/animation partner to collaborate with and make content so undeniably incredible that it forces Hollywood to remember that they used to be in the entertainment business - as opposed to whatever they call what they are doing now. (Cue: Pet Shop Boys - "Opportunities") If this sounds like you, then we are already communicating, which is half the job. I can't express how much I am looking forward to finding the right person to work with! And when you see what it is you will be working on, you'll be glad I found you, as well.

Send me a personalized cover letter, resume, demo reel and/or website links... and convince me that you are the person for this collaboration. I don't care about your degree, where you've been or who you know. That's all fine, but it's the past. I care about the work you do and who you are as a person... Tell me what your favorite cartoons are and why. Tell me about your passions, your dreams, your hobbies and what gets you out of bed every day... I want to "get you" from your letter. Go to:
